Ottawa chases FIFA matches

● FIFA announcement naming Canada host comes after last rival Zimbabwe dropped out this week ● Organizers hope to stage soccer matches from coast to coast

SEAN MCKIBBON @METRONEWS.CA

Canada will host the 2015 Women's World Cup and now Ottawa will be one of seven Canadian cities vying to host soccer match-

"This is great news obviously for Canada, and now it's our job to go out and sell Ottawa," said Mayor Jim Watson. "We did that with the FIFA under-20 men's in 2007, and it was a huge success both from a sports perspective and also from an economic point of view." Like Ottawa, Edmonton, Halifax, Montreal, Moncton, Winnipeg and Vancouver will look to strengthen their claim for pieces of the 2015 tournament and the 2014 U-20 Women's World Cup that comes with it.

Watson says the sporting events could bring more than $12 million to Ottawa's economy. That's a good return for the $400,000 investment the city paid in making a bid to be a host, Watson said.

"The one thing we wanted to do was coast to coast." Peter Montopoli, general secretary of the Canadian Soccer Association, said in an interview from Zurich. "It will be the first time in our country that we've ever held an event at the same time, that everybody across the country can touch and feel."

Ottawa needs good pitch to host games

▶ FIFA has extensive criteria for choosing hosts: City ▶ Officials inspect before making choice in 2012

JOE LOFARO

Ottawa has a lot of work to do if it wants to be one of the Canadian cities to host the Women's World Cup, but Mayor Jim Watson is confident the city will be ready.

"The under-20 women's is in 2014, the stadium will be ready in 2013 and the World Cup is in 2015. So this gives us greater incentive to keep pushing forward with the revitalization of Lansdowne Park," Watson said.

A looming court case in April challenging the city's handling of the revitalization project will be defended vigorously, he said, adding that the possibility of hosting the soccer tourneys only proves the city needs a world-class facility.

The stadium will not be ready by the time FIFA inspectors come to Ottawa later this year to assess Ottawa's infrastructure, said Ottawa's manager of economic development, Saad Bashir. He added the Lansdowne project will not hurt Ottawa's bid to host matches once inspectors arrive.

"They look at the existing infrastructure and they come to an agreement of the kinds of improvements and changes that need to be made in order for them to qualify," said Bashir.

City staff noted that in the case of the World Cup in South Africa in 2010, the majority of the stadiums weren't already built.

"We will be working with the staff here at the city, as well as the external folks who are handling Lansdowne, just to make sure if there's any pre-work we can do to show the stadium," he said.

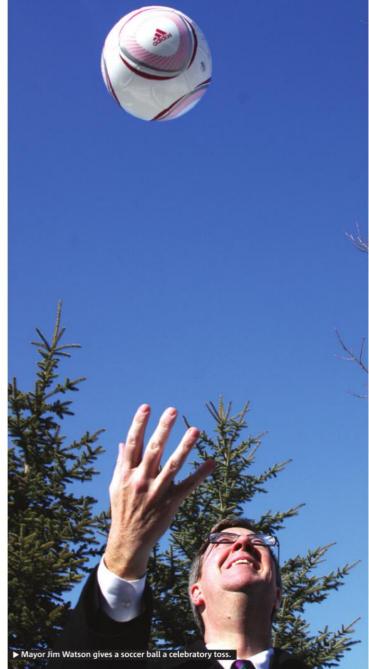

In the meantime, the City of Ottawa will be working closely with the Canadian Soccer Association to prepare for the visits by FIFA, after which officials will determine which Canadian city will be the host city.

Women's bidding

Two Women's World Cups come to Canada

- Canada has been selected to host the FIFA Under-20 Women's World Cup in 2014 and the FIFA Women's World Cup 2015.
- The City of Ottawa expects the tournaments to bring in more than 20,000 out-of-town visitors and a positive economic impact of $12 million from both World Cups.
- Ottawa, Vancouver, Montreal, Edmonton

- Winnipeg, Moncton, and Halifax are the seven Canadian cities bidding to host matches for the FIFA Women's World Cup in 2015.
- If selected as the host city in 2015, Ottawa will provide $400,000 in cash and in-kind services. The Canadian Soccer Association is also waiting on a $2.75-million commitment from the province of Ontario.
- ► The FIFA Women's World Cup is the largest women's single-sport event in the world and will feature 52 matches by teams from 24 nations.

The man who fooled Houdini

• GCTC play delves into the life of Ottawa-born magician Dai Vernon

Magic is never in short supply for Pierre Brault, an

Ottawa actor and writer with a talent for populating a stage with magical, memorable characters.

But next week in his latest show. The Shadow Cutter, at the Great Canadian Theatre Company, Brault delves into an unusual type of magic: that practised by the subject of the play, Ottawa-born Dai Vernon, a contemporary of famed magician Harry Houdini.

Brault shares the stage with Andy Massingham, who will play Vernon.

"Dai Vernon was considered to be one of the foremost magicians of the 20th century," Brault said Thursday at a media preview.

Vernon became known as the only magician ever to fool Houdini with a card trick.

To this day, Brault says, Vernon's name commands respect among the secretive inner circle of stage magicians.

The show runs at the GCTC March 10-27 with two preview shows on March 8 and 9.

Tickets are available at www.gctc.ca or by phone at 613-236-5196.

Caring for an aging parent often falls to one sibling, study shows

A new study of 383 Canadian families reveals a sore point for many who care for aging parents.

The study conducted for the Home Instead Senior Care Network found that in 41 per cent of the families tested, only one sibling had the primary responsibility of taking care of an aging parent.

"We're not surprised because we deal with families like this every day," said Lesley Sullivan, owner of Home Instead Senior Care in Ottawa.

"Usually the daughter would take care of the co-ordinating of the care and the son will pay the bills."

Home Instead Senior Care recently launched the site solvingfamilyconflict.com.

It provides siblings with strategies on how they can effectively cope with an aging parent.

Freezing their assets

● Capabaling at b is e tyrants' wealth here ● Hopes for quick passage

Canada is taking aim at dictators with legislation that would allow the government to freeze the assets of people tied to corrupt regimes like Libva.

Foreign Affairs
Minister Lawrence

Freezing Assets of Corrupt Regimes Act
Thursday, saying Canada wants to support all countries that seek to shun tyranny and embrace democracy.

"Recent developments in the Middle East and North Africa have shown the world how important it is to have legislation in place to allow for a quick response to ensure that foreign dictators cannot hide their ill-gotten wealth in our country," he said.

The legislation would allow the federal government to quickly freeze and seize assets of despots and members of corrupt regimes upon official request.

The new Tunisian government formally asked Canada last month to freeze the family assets of ousted president Zine El-Abidine Ben Ali. But the Canadian government has said it was hampered by several legal factors.

Unlike the freeze on Libyan assets this month, there had been no United Nations sanctions levied on Tunisia after the uprising there.

"Where you have a situation where it is not in the international interest to punish a particular regime, but you are trying to assist, I believe this will be one more tool," Justice Minister Rob Nicholson said.

Nicholson said the government is talking with the opposition parties to get the legislation passed as soon as possible.

"I'm hoping that there will be a consensus that this is a good idea, an important idea," he said.

We're still in a recession: Poll

Canadians do not appear to be convinced the recession is over.

While Statistics Canada has long declared the recession dead, a new survey by The Canadian Press Harris-Decima has 59 per cent of respondents saying we're still in it. About half of them said it will be in a slump for at least another year.

Meanwhile, 36 per cent said Canada has recovered from the recession, with five per cent not sure.

The survey of 1,016 Canadians was conducted Feb. 24 to 27 and is considered accurate within plus or minus 3.1 percentage points, 19 times in 20.

The latest survey suggests three-in-four Canadians believe Ottawa's stimulus spending has been effective in improving the economy.

Speed dating will leave you lonely: Study

▶ Researchers found people can't handle too much variety ▶ Most leave speed-dating events single

The old adage that variety is the spice of life falls on deaf ears when it comes to speed dating, a new study out of the U.K. shows.

In the March edition of the journal Biology Letters, researchers found that speed dating rarely leads to successful dating connections.

They found speed dating presents too many unnatural choices, leading people to avoid making decisions or, more often than not, leaving such an event single.

Marco Francesconi, a

the University of Essex, and colleague Alison Lenton, a lecturer in the department of psychology at the University of Edinburgh, found that people can handle only so much variety before their decision-making skills break down.

They came to their conclusions after analyzing decisions made by 1,870 male and 1,868 female participants in more than 80 commercially run speeddating events. At each event, participants met members of the opposite sex on three-minute dates. They reported their decisions within 48 hours.

As the number of options increased, the researchers found, the number of matches decreased. The majority of the participants left the speed-dating events single.

Fewer teens having sex, says survey

Fewer teens and young adults are having sex, a U.S. government survey shows, and theories abound for why they're doing it less.

Experts say this generation may be more cautious than their predecessors, more aware of sexually spread diseases. Or perhaps emphasis on abstinence in the past decade has had some influence.

Or maybe they're just too busy.

"It's not even on my radar," said 17-year-old Abbey King of Hinsdale, Ill., a competitive swimmer who starts her day at 5 a.m. and falls into bed at 10:30 p.m. after swimming, school, weightlifting, running, more swimming, homework and a volunteer gig working with service dogs for the disabled.

The study, released Thursday, is based on interviews of about 5,300 young people, ages 15 to 24. It shows the proportion in that age group who said they'd never had oral, vagi-

"Some guys, at the end of the day, they'd rather channel their energy into music, playing their guitar or playing computer games."

YVONNE FULBRIGHT, WASHINGTON, D.C.-BASED SEX EDUCATOR

nal or anal sex rose in the past decade from 22 per cent to about 28 per cent.

The findings are sure to surprise some parents who see skin and lust in the media and worry that sex is rampant.

"Many parents and adults look at teens and sex and see nothing but a blur of bare midriffs. They think things are terrible and getting worse," said Bill Albert, chief program officer for the National Campaign to Prevent Teen and Unplanned Pregnancy.

There are other surveys of sexual behaviour, but this is considered the largest and most reliable. "It's the gold standard," Albert said.

Health scientist Anjani Chandra of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention described the decline in sex as small but significant. She declined to speculate on the reasons. It's difficult to look for a trend earlier than 2002 because previous surveys did not gather as much detail about various types of sex, she added. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Other findings

- More than half of young people who had oral sex said they did that before vaginal intercourse; that pattern was much more common in whites than blacks or Hispanics.
- Among young adults, the proportion who had had vaginal or oral sex declined. But the proportion who had anal sex held steady at 21 per cent.
- For all ages in the study, women were more than twice as likely to have had sex with a same-gender partner than men were.

Somali piracy: Corridor of theft, murder, terror

Yachters now refer to what was a major thoroughfare as the Somali gauntlet • Related industries suffer

Thousands of sailors, who once steered their yachts across the warm Indian Ocean without a second thought, are now rerouting, hiring replacement crews, packing their boats aboard cargo ships and contracting armed guards, or cancelling their dream voyages altogeth-

With Somali pirates seizing vessels and killing hostages in an area as vast as the continental United States, boatyards, restaurants and other establishments among the yachters' routes have seen business fall, with some of their customer base scared off.

Somali pirates killed four American vachters month and kidnapped a Danish family aboard their 43-foot sailboat last week. A South African couple taken off their sailboat in October are still be-

Paid guards save yachters

The head of a private security company says his guards retook a yacht from Somali pirates after the Dutch couple on board locked themselves in a safe

Thomas Jakobsson of Naval Guards said Thursday that six of his guards were accompanying the Capricorn yacht on a separate motorboat. Six armed pirates were able to get aboard the Capricorn but the Dutch couple barricaded themselves.

Jakobsson says his men had a brief exchange of fire with the pirates before retaking the Capricorn with no casualties.

The Indian Ocean attack follows the deaths of four Americans last month after their yacht was taken. Last week a Danish family and two crew aboard a yacht also were hijacked.

Meanwhile, maritime news portal Maritimedanmark.dk says armed guards tingborg when they exchanged fire with suspected pirates. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS stopped an attack on a Danish-owned vessel BratEconomic losses

With many yachtsmen abandoning the region altogether, industries dependent on the routes are being devastated.

- Layoffs. Kilifi Boatyard in Kenya, has laid off half its permanent staff. Ten years ago, they'd see more than a dozen yachts come in needing repairs, paint and other work. This year, not one.
- Revenue drop. The tiny island nation of the Seychelles, a favourite with yachters, has seen tourism revenue drop by 15 per cent, while fisheries, shipping and fuel sales to boats are all down by 30 per cent or more, its Foreign Ministry said.

Suez Canal face tough choices. They can't sail in the other direction because the winds aren't right. Bigger yachts can go around the southern tip of Africa, but the Cape of Good Hope is notorious for storms and shipwrecks.

For those who live aboard their boats and want to get home, few choices remain: shell out big money to ship home their yacht or hire guards - or run the Somali gauntlet.

Over the past six months, Peters & May Ltd., a company that specializes in shipping boats and yachts, has seen a roughly 300 per cent increase in inquiries from captains interested in shipping their vessels rather than risking going through pirate-infested waters, said managing director Angus Bruce Jones

But some yacht owners can't or won't pay for expensive shipping or guards. Instead, they might hire a crew to take the risk for them, said Mat Sandys-Winsch of Direct Yacht Deliveries.

Both sides in conflict dig in Rebels reinforced a key oil port Thursday while facing new regime airstrikes in eastern Libya, and thou-sands of angry mourners buried victims of a counteroffensive by Moammar Gadhafi's forces, shooting guns in the air, shouting "Down with Gadhafi!" and swearing to vengeance.

Although there have been stirrings of a diplomatic effort to ease the crian opposition spokesman flatly ruled out any negotiations with Gad-hafi, saying "his hands are tainted with blood."

President Barack Obama insisted that Gadhafi leave office, declaring he had "lost the legitimacy to lead."

He pledged to hold Gadhafi and his loyalists accountable, saying the U.S. and the entire world were violence outraged by against the rebels, and he lauded UN sanctions meant to put international pres-

Libyans held in Gadhafi's troops key to staying power Gadhafi's grip Moammar Gadhafi is safe for now, holed up in the

• People are living in fear of the country's dictator and his supporters Some are calling for outside help Number of deaths not known

The mourning tent was set up in Tripoli's Fashloum neighbourhood Thursday to receive grieving friends and neighbours of a 56-year-old man shot to death Moammar Gadhafi's militiamen a week ago. No one dared show up. Paying condolences to a slain protester is dangerous in the Libyan capital.

A wave of arrests, killings and disappear-ances has terrorized Tripoli in a deadly crackdown by Gadhafi's regime as his opponents try to organize new protests Friday.

Bodies of people who vanished have dumped in the street. Gunmen in SUVs have descended on homes in the night to drag away suspected protesters, identified by video footage of protests that militiamen have pored through to spot faces.

Other militiamen have searched hospitals for wounded to take away.

Residents say they are under the watchful eyes of a variety of Gadhafi militias prowling the streets. They go under numerous names — Internal Security, the Central Support Force, the People's Force, the People's Guards and the Brigade of Mohammed al-Magarif, the head of Gadhafi's personal guard - and they are all searching for suspected protest"There must be some sort of action as soon as possible.... Libyans can't wait any longer." LIBYAN WRITER

"While you are speaking to me now, there are spies everywhere and people watching me and you," one man said, cutting short a conversation with an Associated Press reporter visiting the Tripoli district of Zawiyat al-Dah-man yesterday.

The capital is crucial to the Libyan leader, his strongest remaining bastion after the uprising that began on Feb. 15 broke the entire eastern half of Libva out of his control and even swept over some cities in the west near Tripoli.

The clampdown Tripoli has left some yearning for outside help. One 21-year-old in Zawiyat al-Dahman said residents were hoping for manpower to come from the opposition-held east.

A Libyan writer in his 70s said he rejects "foreign intervention" in Libya's upheaval — but wouldn't mind a "a powerful strike" on Gadhafi's headquarters to stop further bloodshed.

"There must be some sort of action as soon as possible. Time is running and Libyans can't wait any longer," the writer said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Loyalty of Moammar Gadhafi is safe for now, holed up in the Libyan capital, surrounded by his followers and militiamen. Rebels hold a large swath of the east and a string of towns nearer the capital. But neither side seems capable of dislodging the other.

The fate of the oil-rich country may depend on how long Gadhafi can maintain the loyalty of troops, mercenaries and tribes that still support him. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A long fight

Analysts caution it could be months before Libya is rid of its leader.

- No surrender. Gadhafi has vowed to fight on till the end.
- Military support. The Libyan army is roughly 50,000 strong

No hard-knock life for Kate, but no nonsense

Kate moves upward from family's coal-mining background • Could be grounding for royal family

She's not exactly a coal miner's daughter, but Kate Middleton has deep family roots in the grim coal pits of northern England.

Middleton has already captivated the world's imagination with her Cinderella story of going from middle-class girlnext-door to queen-in-waiting, but until recently few knew of her family's connection to coal mining, once a prime source of Britain's prosperity that has now fallen on hard times.

Her great-grandfather left coal country nearly a century ago in pursuit of a safer way of life in the London area, but his siblings stayed behind and spent their working lives in the coal pits. She still has relatives in the area who expect her to bring a practical, no-nonsense approach to royal life once she and Prince William tie the knot at Westminster Abbey on April 29.

John Harrison, a cousin who still lives in Hetton-Le-Hole - once a bustling mining centre now down on its luck - doesn't expect Middleton to act all high and mighty when she officially becomes a princess.

Harrison believes she still has a bit of the coal country in her.

"I think she's going to stamp her northeast way of life on William," said Harrison, who has lost touch with Middleton's side of the family but still plans to celebrate the royal wedding with his family's own party of the year.

"She's told him they're going to be more normal, more down to earth."

Make tea time royal tea

Official celebrates nuptials

Britain's Royal Mint has unveiled the design for an official coin to commemorate Prince William and Kate Middleton's wedding.

The five-pound ($7.92 Cdn) coin shows the couple in profile facing each other, surrounded by a border that reads 'William and Catherine" and their wedding date, '29 April 2011.'

The image of Queen Elizabeth II appears on the reverse side.

The Royal Mint said Thursday that the couple and the Queen have approved the design.

A previous coin to mark the engagement had drawn criticism that the design bore little resemblance to the couple.

The Royal Mint made its first coin to commemorate a royal wedding for the 1981 marriage of Prince Charles and Princess Diana.

Kenney in hot water over Tory fundraising

Immigration minister is one of Harper's most trusted lieutenants • Touted as possible leadership successor

Immigration Minister Jason Kenney is being accused of breaking parliamentary rules by using his MP letterhead to raise funds for a Conservative party cam-

The NDP says Kenney's office mistakenly sent a letter to New Democrat MP Linda Duncan asking for money for a "Conservative Ethnic Paid Media Strate-

The letter says the party additional needs "an $200,000 of financial commitment" from various Conservative riding associations to make the campaign

"Given the current political environment, we hope to have commitments by March 11, 2011," the letter states. The attached campaign outline appears to lay bare Conservative plans for a spring election, referring to a $378,000 "pre-writ" ethnic media buy begin-ning March 15 and lasting for two weeks.

The letter is signed by Kasra Nejatian, director of multicultural affairs in Kenney's office. New Democrat Pat Martin calls the letter a partisan "shakedown" by the immigration minister that should result in a resignation. Martin said the Conservative government "flagrantly, in the most cavservative alier way, (abused) all the rules surrounding offices and letterhead and parliamentary tools and equipment to shake down money for an advertising campaign."

The goal is to increase access to post-secondary education for disadvantaged youth.

Veteran journalist Travers dies at 62

James Travers, a Toronto Star columnist and former editor-in-chief of the Ottawa Citizen, whose Parliament Hill coverage earned him plaudits from across Canada's political spectrum, died Thursday after what was described as a lengthy illness. He was 62.

publisher Cruickshank said Travers died following a stay in hospital in Ottawa. A cause of death was not immediately released.

Prime Minister Stephen Harper paused during a news conference to offer condolences to the columnist's family, friends and colleagues.

"Jim Travers was a fixture on Parliament Hill; he was a journalist who was well regarded and certainly well liked by all who knew him," Harper said.

Travers, whose nearly 40year career culminated in his winning a National Newspaper Award last year, employed a unique brand of reporting that set him apart from others, Cruickshank said. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

President Barack Obama and Mexican President Felipe Calderon agreed Thursday to deepen their co-operation in combating drug violence and declared a breakthrough in efforts to end a long-standing dispute over cross-border trucking.

During a joint news conference at the White House, Obama praised Calderon for his "extraordinary courage" in fighting the violent drug carrels that have been responsible for deaths on both sides of the border.

Calderon's visit comes three weeks after U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement agent Jaime Zapata was shot to death in northern Mexico with a gun smuggled in from the U.S.

Power eludes women at big firms: Study

Number of women in senior management rose by less than one percentage point over two years

As the world marks the 100th anniversary of International Women's Day next week, a study suggests few Canadian women hold the reins of power at big companies.

The 2010 Catalyst Census looked at women senior officers at the Financial Post 500 companies. It found 17.7 per cent of women were senior officers as of June 1, up only slightly from 16.9 per cent in 2008.

"While there's much to celebrate over the last 100 years, what our research shows is that women continue to be underrepresented in leadership," said Catalyst spokeswoman Deborah Gillis.

Canadians might be surprised that 142 companies listed, or 30 per cent, had no women in charge of a principle business unit, as board-elected officers or as policymakers, she said.

Among these are Bombardier, AbitibiBowater, Apotex and Transat A.T. Inc. They declined comment because they had not seen the census.

What was encouraging to Gillis was that the number of public companies listed with 25 per cent or more women senior officers rose 7.7 points in the past two years.

At the Bank of Nova Scotia, nine of its 21 senior officers were women: Almost 43 per cent. Companies with the highest percentage of women senior officers were Coast Capital Savings at 77.8 per cent, followed by State Farm Group, Dundee Corp. and Lululemon Athletica.

BP executives denied bonuses after spill

BP is blocking bonuses to executives who oversaw operations in the Gulf of Mexico during last year's disastrous well blowout, including former CEO Tony Hayward and former production head Andy Inglis.

The London-based oil company's annual report also revealed Thursday that new CEO Bob Dudley decided to forgo his 2010 bonus.

BP PLC said the board's remuneration decisions for 2010 were dominated by the scale and impact of the Gulf spill, which began with the April 20 explosion on the Deepwater Horizon rig that killed 11 workers and led to the worst oil spill in U.S. history. BP faces massive fines in the United States and a raft of compensation cases.

Dudley, who said it was a "painful year," was the only executive director to receive a salary increase, taking his base earnings to $1.18 million US from $750,000 on his promotion to CEO in October.

One of Dudley's first steps as CEO was to declare that incentive pay would in the future be linked to safety performance.

Hayward, who left BP after a series of public gaffes over the handling of the oil spill, will receive almost $150,000 a year as a non-executive at BP's Russian joint venture TNK-BP.

He left the BP board in October with a $1.7-million salary, which was doubled as a termination fee. He also received more than $47,000 in compensation under British employment law and remains entitled to potential performance shares worth about $2.4 million. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's 'the least they could do'

Mississippi shrimper James A. Miller, who estimates he lost up to $70,000 US in revenue due to the BP oil spill, said company executives should be held accountable for the "poor decisions they've made" that caused more than 200-million barrels of oil to gush from the Deepwater Horizon rig before it was capped in mid-lulv.

"Taking money from them is the least they could do" Miller said.

Anthony Kennon, mayor of Orange Beach, Ala., whose community was hard hit by the spill, said he was not surprised by the BP decision on bonuses.

"Common sense would dictate that bonuses are predicated on performance and the oil spill in the Gulf is indicative of poor performance to me," he said.

MINUTES WITH: STEVE PAIKIN

Steve Paikin, host of TVOntario's The Agenda, brought his show to Ottawa earlier this week.

What's the idea behind taking your show on the road? A few times a year we go on the road, because as much as we like the format of the program the way it is, the fact is that you've got to go on the road, into people's communities, to really get a sense of where they're at and what issues are important to them

Guests on your show seem to talk over and interrupt each other less than they do on other panel discussions. Do you have any magic tricks to make that happen?

I don't have any magic tricks other than I say to everybody ahead of time this is not Jerry Springer. We don't go for the food fight. There's a thousand other shows on TV if that's what you want. We offer a sane, thoughtful (we hope) place for people to come and exchange ideas in an intelligent, non-threatening, nonconfrontational way. That's not to say, obviously, when ideas clash you're not going to get some heated discussion from time to time, but I think people know when they come on The Agenda they're not going to be shouted down or disrespected.

When you moderate a leaders' debate, do you also have that little chat with the participants?

Well, much of it depends on format and rules. The last time, it was five leaders — Stephen Harper, Stéphane Dion, Jack Layton, Gilles Duceppe, Elizabeth May — all at the table and nobody was on a clock, and it was very much a freewheeling discussion. But I did say to them ahead of time no one can understand you when you all scream at each other all at once, so, please, let's try and do this in a civilized way. And I think for the most part they all followed that pretty well.

Was there a moment when you really had to lay down the law? No, I don't think I did. There was one moment for about five seconds where a bunch of them were all talking at once and I think I sort of quipped, "Guys, Joe Biden and Sarah Palin are on at the same time we are on a different channel, and I'm trying to make sure people don't flip over to them." After that, they were fine. STEVE COLLINS

Science of locking lips Is a kiss really ever just a kiss?

Worth Mentioning

Sheril Kirshenbaum, a researcher at the University of Texas at Austin, has compiled a motherlode of fragmented studies and observations from historians and sociologists, brain experts and animal-watchers in a surprisingly slim and definitely curious new book, The Science of Kissing: What Our Lips Are Telling Us.

Her conclusion? Inconclusive. The act of "osculain technical parlance — is ingrained in more than 90 per cent of cultures around the world. If they don't place lips on or lips elsewhere they lick or nibble with the same goals in mind.

If we could unravel its origins, Kirshenbaum surmises, we could unlock a trove of evolutionary and physiological mysteries that might carry the kiss from merely interesting to incredibly valuable. Scientists can't decide whether kissing is instinctual (newborns pucker for their first taste of mothmilk), (learned, that is, for joy or survival) or deeper still (ingrained in our very DNA) or all of the above.

The German language alone has 30 words for kissing, including one, "nachkussen," which is a kiss to compensate for those that have not occurred, according to Kirshenbaum.

Metro Minute with Classic Albums Live

The song remains the same at the Shenkman Arts Centre tonight as Classic Albums Live plays Led Zeppelin's Houses of the Holy in its entirely. Since 2003, the per-formers of Classic Albums Live have been playing the likes of AC/DC's Back in Black, The Doors' L.A. Woman, The Eagles' Hotel California and Floyd's Dark Side of the Moon live, note for note, cut for cut.

Houses of the Holy, the first Led Zeppelin album composed of completely original songs, has sold more than 11 million copies in the U.S. Tickets are $38.75 and the show starts at 8 p.m. • metro

CROUSE & MARK BRESLIN

Damon & Blunt shine

The Reel Guys debate the merits of The Adjustment Bureau On screen chemistry of Blunt and Damon help lift genre-bending film to another level

Richard Crouse: Mark, I really liked this movie even though I can't really tell you what it is. It's scifi, but it's also an effective romance. It's also an action movie that is quite funny. It's all that and more, which makes it kind of hard to pigeonhole. Do you think that vagueness will hurt it at the box office?

Mark Breslin: I liked the movie too, although I suppose it was all part of the plan. I imagine the hope would be that all those genres will each bring in its own audience, which is possible. I think if you liked The Truman Show or Eternal Sunshine of the Spotless Mind, or even The Box, this movie may be for you, although its far less menacing than those films.

Plot synopsis

Matt Damon and Emily Blunt play star-crossed lovers who fell in love at first sight, but somehow are kept apart for years. When they have a second chance meeting he

What might hurt it at the box office is its intelli-

RC: As far as box office goes I think the thing that this movie really has going for it is the chemistry between Matt Damon and Emily Blunt. Sparks fly between them, especially in their scene on the New York City bus. It's sexy, flirty and lots of fun. They are completely believable as a couple and as an audimember pulling for them.

becomes determined not to let her go, but the mysterious men from the Adjustment Bureau are just as determined to keep them apart.

Ratinas: Richard 🕮 🕮 ½ Mark: @@@@

MB: Yes, and I'm glad they let Emily Blunt keep her British accent - a sign of a superior movie. But I really think it's an idea movie as much as a romance. It's a preposterpremise, everything proceeds logically once you accept it. But my complaint is that the details are so arbitrary: the doors, the hats, the rain. Oh, and why are there no women in The Adjustment Bureau? Is the Chairman ... a sexist?

RC: We never really meet the Chairman ... perhaps he is a she. Who knows? Like all great science fiction, The Adjustment Bureau isn't as much about the ideas - do we have free will or just the illusion of free will? — as much as it is about the characters. Without strong leads this might have been a mishmash of arbitrary, unbelievable details, but with Blunt and Damon at the centre of it all, it gels.

MB: And good secondary characters, too. John Slattery is note-perfect, and the arrival of Terrence Stamp halfway through has to mean things are going to get rougher. But did Damon's campaign manager have to look so much like Eliot Spitzer? I found that unnerving.

Rodriguez set for Battle

Hollywood tomboy had no problem fitting into another 'tough girl' role for flick Battle: Los Angeles

Michelle Rodriguez is no stranger to roles that put her in uniform, thanks to a tough girl image she's developed — and accepted thanks to roles in Girlfight, The Fast and the Furious and Lost. In her latest, Battle: Los Angeles, Rodriguez goes full military as an Air Force tech sergeant trying to stop an alien invasion. Metro with Rodriguez being a tomboy, spoke breaking character on set and her rather detailed thoughts on aliens.

What was it about this film that made you want to do it?

(Director) Jonathan (Liebesman)'s style. You read a script and you think, "OK, this is a doable script. It's a cool alien invasion flick." The what's going to yay or nay it for me is what the aliens look like and how you're going to shoot it. Most of the time if you see an alien invasion film and it's titled Battle: Los Angeles, you would just imagine the Hollywood sign being blown up. You imagine iconic, macrocosmic images of explosions, and nothing personal or intimate. And what attracted me to the film is that I felt it was going to be about the story of these guys and trying to survive, and it would be intimate.

Was it hard to find your place among all the guys? No, I'm kind of used to it now. The tomboy thing is pretty much my world. It was easy. We were playing video games in between takes, chilling. I actually got a little bit too close with the boys. Those protein shakes, you know, can make you talk without opening your mouth, let's put it that way. Not know. I have a hard time going against my gut. You know when you feel like you need to go left, and everyone around you saying you need to go right? I will go left, because it's what my gut says. Most people I've encountered are not that type of person, so you run into a lot of problems being a lefty when everyone wants to go right. Í wouldn't be considered a tough chick if everybody were going left. I'm only considered tough chick because

I'm going against the grain

Is it true that Aaron Eckhart stayed in character for the whole shoot?

Yeah, I didn't meet him until a couple of weeks ago. I met Sgt. Nantz. I know he hated having my ass on set. You hear somebody cackling as soon as they say, "Cut." I'm totally breaking the concentration. I'm over here laughing my ass off every five seconds. Yeah, I'm pretty annoying for tactical actors. You know, guys who do that thing.

Do you believe in aliens and

I've never seen one. I do believe in the possibility of them. Just because we can only perceive four per cent of existence, the other 96 per cent is a mystery. I just have to be open to the idea, you know? I can't close my mind to it. It just wouldn't be logical to me. And if they did exist, I don't believe they would be violent just because to travel light years away, you would have to embody more light than be a solid, crystalized creature like humans are. I just can't imagine them being violent in any way, shape or form. I find that to be more of a human trait because we decay and we're more close to life and death than I think light creatures would be. You know? I think if you were an inter-dimensional creature, you would just have to be enlightened in some

That description is par-ticularly a propos in Canawhere Handler's cheeky chatfest Chelsea Lately airs weeknights at 11:30 on E! - an importedfrom-America specialty brand that was off the air north of the border for about a year as rights swung from Global to CTV.

The 36-year-old comedienne is about to add to her E! efforts with the launch of After Lately, which premieres Sunday at 11 p.m. ET. The new weekly series will attempt to capture the madness that goes on all week behind the scenes between Handler, her old-Roy, brother diminutive sidekick Chuy,

"There's a lot of backstage stuff going on," she told Conan O'Brien on his talk show this week, "and I figure we should be filming this because it's really, really immature and we should be making this into a TV show."

The new show is in addition to her comedy concert career, her writing career (she's the author of three bestsellers with a new book due in May) and her producing career (NBC is developing a sitcom based on one of those books, Are You There, Vodka? It's Me, Chelsea).

Beastly Genre: Drama Director: Daniel Barnz Stars: Vanessa Hudgens, Alex Pettyfer

If you ever doubted that beauty is only skin deep, Beastly will drive that message into your head with the subtlety of a cricket bat. In this modern-take of Beauty and the Beast, an unlikeable rich kid is cursed with scars (and the phrase "embrace the suck" in place of eyebrows) until he can get High School Musical's Vanessa Hudgens to love him. However, fumbling dialogue and little chemistry between the leads will do little to earn the love of audiences, unless of course they embrace the suck.

####

Lost In Translation director Sophia Coppola returns with another story about a movie star living a sad transient life in hotels and on movie sets, unable to make a real connection with anyone. Stephen Dorff takes on Bill Murray's role and the comic's deadpan humour is replaced by additional listless, shirtless, depression. There's a slight salvation to be had in the touching relationship between Dorff and his tween daughter.

Attempt at broad appeal dooms Rango

Rango Genre: Animated Director: Gore Verbinski Stars: Johnny Depp, Isla Fisher, Timothy Olyphant

Rango is a big expensive mess of a movie from director Gore Verbinski, recalling his aggravatingly assaultive attempts at entertainment in the Pirates Of The Caribbean sequels. The film piles on interminable action set pieces, one-note characters attempting humour, and an endless stream of confused movie references that only serves to remind the audience of better movies that they'd rather be watching.

The movie is a Western

The movie is a Western homage that sees Johnny Depp's wacky lizard take over as the sheriff of a one-horse town populated by anthropomorphized desert scavengers who use water for currency. The screenplay mixes broad jokes that will make adults' eyes roll with pop culture references and crude humour that will fly over the heads of children (unless they are familiar with Hunter S. Thompson and mammograms, of course). Rango won't entirely appeal to either audience.

NATIONAL ARTS CENTRE CENTRE NATIONAL DES ARTS Carmen is a Country & Western singer who has returned to Montreal from Nashville and begins to write her own songs—about real people and real problems, all in a language they understand. Soon she becomes an inspiration for the oppressed; their sun, their idol, their voice. However, a question arises. While it may be good to "wake people up," what do you do with them once they are awake?

Created in 1976 on the eve of the referendum, Saint Carmen of The Main is one of Michel Tremblay's most important plays. Set in the nightclubs on Montreal's infamous St. Laurent Boulevard, known locally as "The Main," the play unfolds as a twentieth century "Greek tragedy" with its underworld goddesses and heroes, monsters and myths, exploring the nature of revolt, rebellion and cultural identity.

Quick Facts About Michel Tremblay

- 27 of his 36 plays have been translated into more than 30 languages
- In 1999, he received the Governor General's Performing Arts Award
- He has received some 20 awards and honours in Canada, France, Italy, Belgium and Scotland.

"An absolutely fascinating gesture by a powerful playwright."

– The Toronto Star

"Don't miss this inspired production."

3-D revolution is here to stay

● The box office receipts show that the public is all in on 3-D movies ● Hollywood sees a cash cow and is going to milk it for all it's worth ● Directors like Cameron and Burton think any type of movie can be made in 3-D

There is no question that, since the premiere of James Cameron's Avatar, which grossed $2.7 billion US worldwide, 3-D technology has become a major part of Hollywood movies. And the surge in 3-D films has bolstered the box office draw for all genres, from Clash of the Titans to Toy Story 3 to even Justin Bieber's documentary and concert film, Never Say Never.

With worries about declining theatre attendance on the rise as viewers enjoy more options at home, 3-D has created a ray of hope for distributors — at least until 3-D televisions become affordable. It also gives theatre owners the chance to make more money by charging more

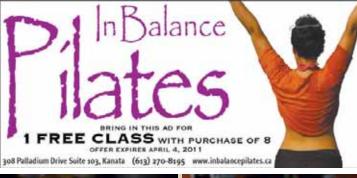

3-D numbers

- Number of 3-D movies released in 2005: 3
- Number of 3-D movies re leased in 2010: 24
- Cost to make Avatar:
 US$280 million, estimated
- Amount Avatar grossed internationally: $2.7 billion
- Cost to convert a regular film into 3-D: $5 million
- Worldwide gross of the converted 3-D Clash of the Titans: $493 million
- Average cost of a regular ticket: $12.75
- Average cost of 3-D ticket: $15.75 for 3-D: A single movie ticket for a 3-D presentation in New York City can cost as much as $18. A regular ticket only costs $13.

Cameron, like many, is sticking with the new technology. "I'm going to make all my movies in 3-D, no matter what the subject matter," he says.

"We'll see if other film-makers rise to that challenge."

Other filmmakers certainly appear to be, including veteran horror movie maestro Wes Craven.

"Everything I'm reading about it is that this is not something from the '50s that they're just trying again for the hell of it," Craven says. "I think we're into a world where 3-D is emerging and it's going to be here. I want to be the man that's on the boat, not standing on the dock when the boat sails away."

Tim Burton, whose Alice in Wonderland has grossed more than $1 billion US worldwide, thanks in large part to 3-D ticket sales, is also on that boat.

"It's not a gimmick," Burton says. "You could do 'My Dinner with Andre' in 3-D."

But not everyone is jumping on board the 3-D bandwagon. One notable holdout is director Gore Verbinski, who made a point of not using 3-D for his latest animated feature, Rango, starring Johnny Depp. "I don't think there's a

"I don't think there's a dimension missing," he says of the finished product. "I don't watch it and go, 'You know, it's flat,' or it's missing anything. We talked about it early on and it just didn't seem like we needed to go there."

The News bring soul to new album

• In Soulsville, Huey Lewis and his bandmates were inspired by obscure soul classics Dut they make it their own with band's signature sound

San Francisco in the late '60s, that fantastical time and place for heady music, where the figureheads of classic rock all seemed to just sprout up from the ground. He liked that stuff, but it didn't floor him.

"Johnny, Sean and Billy, we were all from the Bay Area, but listening to soul music, oddly enough," he says about his bandmates Johnny Colla, Sean Hopper and Billy Gibson, who for more than 30 years have been known to the world as the News.

"Our brothers, and my mother, for example, was a big Dead Head."

But Lewis and his pals weren't so "grateful" for acid rock. They'd rather hear a brass section.

"The horn thing for me was like guitar relief," says Lewis. "I'd had enough freakin' guitar!"

And with Soulsville, the latest Huey Lewis and the News album, the band went back to their record collection and found themselves in a series of somewhat obscure soul classics.

"We were trying to capture it correctly, and it's nothing like Huey Lewis and the News," he says. "And then we listened to the playback, and all of a sudden it sounds like Huey Lewis and the News. And the realization for me is how much I was influenced by this stuff. And I didn't even realize it."

It's been eight years since Huev Lewis has played in New York City.

We told him we thought it was a moral obligation to play every city he mentions in his 1983 song The Heart of Rock 'n' Roll, where he sings about New York.

Lewis says he's usually playing Westbury, N.Y. "We were a beer-and-hot-dog band," he says. "Now we're part of the wine and cheese set.

Lively honoured as face of Chanel

Blake Lively's style has inspired many, but she says it was her mother who helped to shape her own fashion sensibilities.

Lively — the new face of Chanel's Mademoiselle handbag — was honoured by the famed fashion label a dinner Wednesday night. At the event, Lively gave credit to her mother for educating her about fashion.

Lively says her mother was a model so she was always exposed to beautiful clothes. Her mother would also make clothes and bring her daughters with her to buy fabrics.

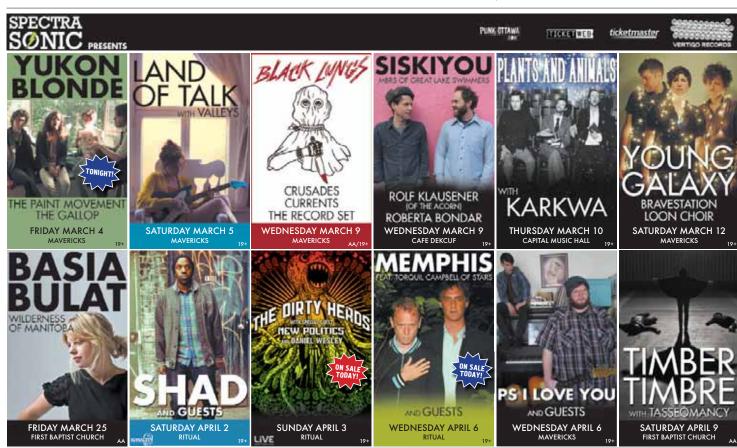

Lively said besides the right look, confidence is key in making an outfit WORK THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Star hands car keys to Canadians

• Vintage automobile with some serious rock cred is donated to the Canada Science and Technology Museum

He had fun, fun, fun till the museum took his T-bird away.

Rock-music icon Randy Bachman has donated his 1965 Thunderbird to Canada's national science museum.

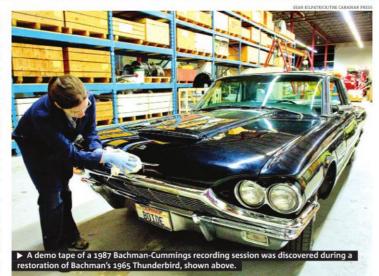

Bachman, a lead guitarist who gained fame as a founder of the Guess Who and Bachman-Turner Overdrive, bought the car from his Guess Who collaborator, Burton Cummings giving vintage wheels a double musical pedigree.

"Burton Cummings drove this car around L.A. for many years," Bachman wrote in an email to The Canadian Press. "Every time he'd drive me somewhere, I'd ogle at the car and tell him that if he ever wanted to sell it, he should call me ... "Fast forward to 2003, we're touring with the Guess Who when he offered me the car, and I bought it."

from the rockin' 1960s is in mint condition. With its powerful V8 engine, a growling T-bird can make the Indy 500 look like a Roman chariot race," as the Beach Boys famously sang in their 1964 hit Fun, Fun. Fun.

The jet-black speedster, which joined the science collection in January, has its own curious place in Canadian music history.

apart from its famous popstar owners.

For years, a demo tape of a 1987 Bachman-Cummings recording session in White Rock, B.C., was lost somewhere in the trunk.

"It's beautiful, pretty damn cool. It looks great ... other than a good wash, the car is in great shape."

LUC FOURNIER. CANADA SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY MUSEUM

Rediscovered during a restoration seven years ago, the rare digital recordings of 10 lost songs were eventually turned into a CD entitled - what else? - the Thunderbird Trax.

Bachman long ago donated his extensive musical archives to Library and Archives Canada, and learned from officials of an interest in the car.

"I heard through them that the museum of science and technology was looking for the 'ultimate Canadian rock 'n' roll car' and I thought of the Thunderbird, so I offered it to them," Bachman said in his email.

"I still travel a lot playing rock festivals and gigs, plus we have homes in Salt Spring Island, B.C., London and Santa Monica, so there's no time to enjoy driving these days.

The 1965 T-bird is the fourth generation of the best-selling roadster, and the first model equipped with standard front-wheel disc brakes.

It's currently sitting in a dark corner of a museum warehouse in Ottawa, under a tarp and getting some minor touch-ups after its long journey by truck from Bachman's home on Salt Spring Is-

But museum officials are planning a splashy event with Bachman showing off his hot wheels, though details have not yet been worked out.

Jolie a 'shockingly great mother': Depp

Johnny Depp says working with Angelina Jolie on his latest film taught him to think of her in a different way — as a great mother.

Depp says he does not know how Jolie and partner Brad Pitt handle parenthood while juggling the distractions of being famous. He says Jolie is "a shockingly great mother" and remains calm despite all the paparazzi and pressures of fame.

Depp says he'd "probably be in prison" if he had to deal with as many kids.

Jolie and Pitt have six children. Depp has two with French actress Vanessa Paradis.

Mariah feels 'horrible' over Gadhafi concert

Mariah Carey says she wasn't unaware that she was booked to perform a concert linked to Gadhafi's clan — and she's embarrassed about it.

Carey is among a handful of entertainers who were paid handsome fees to give exclusive private concerts. It was later revealed the people behind those concerts were the family of embattled Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi.

In a statement, Carey says she was naive about the booking of the performance and feels "horrible and embarrassed." But she adds that performers must bear responsibility and be aware of whom they are performing for.

We all scream for Fallon

• Host celebrates two years of television by branding his very own Late Night snack

As Jimmy Fallon celebrates his second anniversary hosting Late Night, what he eats for dessert should be a no-brainer: a brandnew ice cream flavour named for his show.

The scoop about Ben & Jerry's Late Night Snack was timed to the milestone Fallon marked on Wednesday, two years after he took over for Conan O'Brien as host of the NBC talk show (which airs weeknights at 12:35 a.m. EST).

"I'm still enjoying it as much as I did when we first got started," Fallon said earlier this week. "It's so much fun!"

"Back then, the audience didn't know what to expect. I didn't even know what to expect!"

Everybody knows now: goofy, play-and jovial chat, plus his powerhouse band, The Roots. With that formula, Fallon's Late Night has settled into a robust battle with its CBS rival, The Late Late Show With Craig Ferguson — a ratings battle that often tips in Fallon's favour.

And now he has his own ice cream, too.

Previously, Ben & Jerry's flavours have saluted such show-biz figures as Stephen Colbert (Stephen Colbert's Americone Dream), Elton John (Goodbye Yellow Brickle Road), Jerry Garcia (Cherry Garcia) and Vermont-bred rockers Phish (Phish Food).

But Fallon is the first broadcast late-night TV host to be so honoured.

"I creamed them," he said with a chuckle, speaking of his competitors, adding, "They will want to eat it.'

Its development inadvertently got churning last summer when Fallon performed a musical tribute to Ben & Jerry's with his spoof yocal group, Ladysmith

Snack Mambazo

After that, Ben & Jerry's contacted the show and requested a meeting.

"They set up ice cream in our conference room, started talking, and asked if we wanted to do our own flavour," Fallon recalled. "We said, 'Are you kidding?! That's living the dream!'"

But they had to solve this problem: What should be the ice cream's key ingredient that would signify a late-night snack? Fig Newtons and Grape-Nuts fell by the wayside.

Then Fallon and his executive producer Michael

Shoemaker hit on an odd but winning snack component: potato chips.

The Ben & Jerry's people figured out a way to crush the chips and transform them into clusters, which, coated in chocolate, were mixed into vanilla ice cream with caramel swirls as a sweet-and-salty treat.

Now, having licked that challenge, Fallon is looking ahead to a new year he envisions as even sweeter than before.

He says Late Night plans another round of its showwithin-a-show, The Real Housewives of Late Night, and a new comedy feature: Jersey Floor.

"You push a button in the elevator," explained Fallon, "and when you get off on that floor, you're Jersey-fied: You're tanned, you have a blow-out and there's a nightclub atmosphere."

Next week, when the show is in repeats, he won't be resting. He heads to Houston, where he'll tape comedy segments at a rodeo.

"It's all fun opportunities," Fallon said, summing up his busy life.

"It's doors opening where I think, 'I'd be crazy not to go in."

Stone leaves no reality show unturned

Aussie chef Curtis Stone to host Top Chef Masters

Also investing in America's Next Great Restaurant

Whether he's coaching The Biggest Loser contestants, filling in for Kathie Lee Gifford on Today, cohosting the Miss USA pageant or barbecuing for Oprah Winfrey, it seems like Curtis Stone is everywhere these days.

In his role on NBC's

In his role on NBC's new reality TV eatery contest, he's adding a new title to his ever-growing resumé: investor.

The lanky Australian chef is serving as a financial backer of the grand prize — a fast-casual restaurant chain with outposts in Los Angeles, New York and Minneapolis — on America's Next Great Restaurant (premiering Sunday at 8 p.m. EST) alongside celebrity chef Bobby Flay, Chipotle founder Steve Ells and restaurateur Lorena Garcia.

"Normally, when NBC comes to you and wants you to do a show, you're like, 'Woo hoo! I just landed a new show,'" said

"There are people that are just naturals on television, and Curtis is one of them."

DAN CUTFORTH, EXECUTIVE PRODUCER. TOP CHEF MASTERS

Stone. "This was different because they actually wanted us to get our checkbooks out."

Stone wouldn't say how much the group is contributing to launch the winner's restaurant chain, but insisted, "We're all equal investors in terms of our financial commitment to it, which means we get an equal say in how this is going to work."

If it flops, Stone already has another gig lined up. He's the new host of Bravo's Top Chef Masters.

"It's a dream job for me," he said earlier this month on the set of the Bravo cooking competition spin-off, where he's taken over Kelly Choi's spot for the third season. "When they first approached me, I told them they needed to mix it up and put all of the chefs together in one pool, and they told me that's exactly what they were doing."

That means the contest will play out more like a regular Top Chef season. Producers dumped the numerical scoring system in favour of having the experienced "cheftestants" eliminated one by one by the show's judges.

Dan Cutforth and Jane Lipsitz, the Top Chef Masters and America's Next Great Restaurant executive producers, point to Stone's combination of stunning good looks, exotic Aussie accent, culinary skills and entrepreneurial prowess as the reasons why it seems as though he's on every TV show these days, except Jersey Shore. DINNER EXPRESS

EMILY RICHARDS
FOOD@METRONEWS.CA

A slice of this King Cake (recipe adapted from The Associated Press) should get you in the mood. It is decorated with Mardi Gras colours.

Preparation:

In a bowl of stand mixer fitted with dough hook, combine milk, sugar, rind, eggs, egg yolks and butter. With mixer running on low, add nutmeg, salt, yeast and flour. Mix until dough comes together and is soft and sticky adding more flour if necessary. Increase mixer speed and knead for about 5 minutes. Cover and allow to rise for 1 hour or until doubled.

2 Filling: In saucepan, combine raisins with water to cover. Bring to boil. Remove from heat and let stand for 15 minutes. Drain; pat dry.

In food processor, combine raisins, cream cheese, sugar, flour and cinnamon. Pulse until combined. Add pecans and pulse until mixed.

Turn dough onto a light-4 ly floured surface. Roll into a rectangle, about 22 by 14 inches (56 x 35 cm). Spread filling over dough, leaving a 2-inch (5 cm) border along the edges. Starting with one long edge, roll dough up into a tight log starting. Pinch seam and place on greased baking sheet bringing the ends together to form a ring. Loosely cover and let rise for about 1 hour.

5 Bake cake in centre of 350 F (180 C) oven for 45 to 55 minutes. Transfer to a wire rack to cool.

6 Icing: In bowl, stir sugar and lemon juice until smooth. Drizzle over top of cake and sprinkle with sugars before icing hardens.

Convinced that music is a key ingredient for good wine, an Austrian man has invented a speaker that exposes fermenting grape juice to classical, jazz or electronic tunes.

Markus Bachmann theorizes the sound waves emanating from his speaker move yeast particles around and cause them to eat up greater amounts of sugar, resulting in a wine that has a lower overall sugar content.

The NFL and the players'

The NFL and the players' union agreed Thursday to a 24-hour extension of the current collective bargaining agreement so that negotiations can continue.

Indianapolis Colts centre Jeff Saturday, a member of the NFL Players Association's executive committee, told The Associated Press about the extension after the sides met for about eight hours before a federal mediator. The CBA was set to expire at midnight, which would likely have prompted the first work stoppage since 1987 for a league that rakes in $9 billion US a year.

"We just know right now that we granted a 24-hour extension," Saturday said as he and Steelers quarterback Charlie Batch left the session Union executive director DeMaurice Smith emerged from the talks soon after.

"For all our fans who dig our game, we appreciate your patience as we work through this," he said. "We are going to keep working. We want to play football."

Failing to make a deal could put the two sides on the road to a year without football, even though opening kickoff of the 2011 season is still six months away. The labour unrest comes as the NFL is at the height of its popularity, breaking records for TV ratings: This year's Super Bowl was the most-watched program in U.S. history.

Obama said, "but I also think that for an industry that's making $9 billion a year in revenue, they can figure out how to divide it up in a sensible way and be true to their fans, who are the ones who obviously allow for all the money that they're making. So my expectation and hope is that they will resolve it without me intervening, because it turns out I've got a lot of other stuff to do."

Today's horoscope

T Aries March 21-April 20 You have never been the sort to wallow in self-pity and that's good because you'll need a positive attitude to handle what comes your way today. In the greater scheme of things, it's no big deal.

¥ Taurus April 21-May 21 Let everyone know you desire, and you will increase your chances of getting it. For every rival who might oppose your plans, you have 1,000 friends who can be called on to help.

II Gemini May 22-June 21 lt may seem as if you have a mountain to climb but never doubt that you've got what it takes. You're a Gemini and that means you are versatile. You'll find a way to the top.

G Cancer June 22-July 22

Today's new moon will boost your energy and self-belief. But if you're wise, you'll start looking ahead and start gearing up to meet the demands you will face in the future.

Ω Leo July 23-Aug.23 Don't take anything too seriously today and don't get angry with people who have a habit of saying one thing and then doing something different. They can't help it. Unlike you, they lack drive and commitment.

TP Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 It may concern you that someone who can usually be counted on for support is now questioning your actions, but it's no big deal. Maybe there's a reason why he or she is losing faith.

← Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 You know what needs to be done, so do it. You may be lacking motivation but this is one of those days when, if you push yourself harder, you will breeze through any challenge.

M Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22

Whatever it is you are trying to keep a secret from people will become public knowledge sooner or later. You might as well come clean. The reaction won't be as bad as you fear.

→ Sagittarius

Nov. 23-Dec. 21 Make allowances for those who seem reluctant to follow you on your latest adventure - some don't have what it takes. You may have to travel alone at first, but you'll soon pick up new friends.

り Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20

Make the most of the new moon in the most outgoing area of your chart to get yourself noticed. You don't want to appear too aloof today because it might work against your long-term interests.

Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 Money worries seem to be causing you grief but the new moon will show you how to get past your financial troubles. Yes, sacrifices will have to be made, but they're worth it.

) Pisces Feb. 19-March 20

Today's new moon will inspire you to show the world that you are more than just a pretty face. You've always had talent - now you've got real ambition, too, SALLY BROMPTON
